Developing a research coordinator network in maternal & child health

With the vast experience in maternal and child health research coordination in the Department of Pediatrics and beyond, the time is right for us to come together to discuss how we might formalize a research coordinator network for ongoing peer support. Those who have been working in research for some time have significant and diverse experience to share; others who are more junior may benefit from group resources and mentorship. Regardless of your career stage, don’t miss this opportunity to come together to discuss how we can support each other in our work!

Who should join? Research staff working in maternal and child health

Put your thinking cap on! This will be a group discussion, so please come prepared with ideas about how you would like to see a professional network structured and how this would support your work.

All faculty, research staff, allied health staff, and trainees are welcome to attend.
These are interactive sessions - we want to hear your feedback, questions and great ideas!
